Treatment Agreement Addendum: Confidentiality Regarding Work with Minors

Prior to beginning treatment, it is important for you to understand my approach to child therapy and agree to some rules about your child's confidentiality during the course of his/her treatment. The information herein is in addition to the information contained in my Office Policies, General Information & Treatment Agreement form. Under HIPAA/Privacy Practices and the National Association of Social Workers Ethics Code, I am legally and ethically responsible to provide you with informed consent. As we go forward, I will try to remind you of important issues as they arise.

One risk of child therapy involves disagreement between parents/caregivers. If such disagreements occur, I will strive to listen carefully so that I can understand your perspectives and provide recommendations with the best interest of your child in mind. I hope we can resolve such disagreements so that your child's therapeutic progress may continue. If either of you decides that therapy should end, I will honor that decision; however, I ask that you allow me the option of having a few closing sessions to appropriately end the therapeutic relationship and ease the transition for your child.

Therapy is most effective when a trusting relationship exists between the therapist and the client. Privacy is especially important in securing and maintaining that trust. One goal of treatment is to promote a stronger and better relationship between children and their parents. However, it is often necessary for children to develop a "zone of privacy" whereby they feel free to discuss personal matters with greater freedom. This is particularly true for adolescents who are naturally developing a greater sense of independence and autonomy.

It is my policy to provide you with general information about treatment status. I will raise issues which impact your child either inside or outside the home. I will make every attempt to share with you what your child has disclosed to me after obtaining your child's consent and input, if clinically appropriate. I will tell you if your child does not attend sessions.

If your son or daughter is an adolescent, it is possible that he/she will reveal sensitive information regarding sexual contact, alcohol and drug use, or other potentially problematic behaviors. Sometimes these behaviors are within the range of normal adolescent experimentation, but at other times they may require parental intervention. I invite you to share with me your feelings and opinions regarding these issues. If I ever believe that your child is at serious risk of harming himself/herself or another, I will inform you and will take steps to put a safety plan into place for your child. If these reported behaviors do not appear to be a potential source of imminent harm to the adolescent, I may make the clinical decision to withhold this information from you if asked to do so by the adolescent, in order to preserve his/her sense of trust in me and the therapeutic process and to better ensure therapeutic progress in the long run. My goal, however, is to eventually help the adolescent share this information directly with the parent or guardian, but unfortunately this is not always easily or immediately facilitated.

Although my responsibility to your child may require my involvement in conflicts between two parents, I need your agreement that my involvement will be strictly limited to that which will benefit your child. It is essential that neither parent will attempt to introduce clinical information from your child's treatment in any legal proceeding that may occur between the two of you. In particular, I need your agreement that in any such proceedings, neither of you will ask me to testify in court, whether in person, or by affidavit. I ask you to please instruct your attorneys not to subpoena me or to refer in any court filing to anything I have said or done. Please note that such agreement may not prevent a judge from requiring my testimony, even though I will work to avoid such an event in the best interests of your child and the therapeutic process. If I am required to testify, and the court appoints a custody evaluator, guardian ad litem, or mediator, I will provide information as needed (if appropriate releases are signed or a court order is provided), but I will not make any recommendation about the final decision, as this would be beyond the scope of my treatment of your child. Furthermore, if I am required to appear as a witness, the party responsible for my participation will be asked to reimburse me at the rate of $200 per hour for time spent traveling, preparing reports, testifying, being in attendance, and any other case-related costs. I also charge $1.00 for every page of your child's file that you may request to be photocopied for such purposes.

Thank you very much in advance for your cooperation with this policy.      Rebecca Brunette, LCSW
